Construction marches on, dining gets ‘fine tuning’ over summer

BY LEAH BULETTI News Editor

While several important River Campus construction projects came to their long-awaited completion this summer, several others started in the last couple of months, making construction seem like a ubiquitous part of the River Campus scene.

Construction

Perhaps one of the most anticipated construction projects is O’Hara Hall, the new dorm that completes the freshly refurbished Jackson Court in the northeast corner of the campus. The hall, which was completed in time for the housing move in on Aug. 10 and the first students began to move in on Aug. 12, as scheduled, according to Executive Director for Campus Planning Design and Construction Management Jose Fernandez. Improvements to Jack- son Court include the addition of an outdoor fireplace available for student use.

“We were looking for new ways for students to interact on campus and thought an outdoor fireplace would be neat and would extend the outdoor period,” Fernandez said, adding that certain policies will be in place in order to ensure that students use the fireplace safely.

Construction on the new building that will house the Warner School of Education, Raymond F. Lesch Hall, which is being built behind Morey and Lattimore halls and adjacent to Todd Union, is proceeding on schedule and is still slated for completion in early December, with full occupancy by the start of the spring semester, Fernandez said.

The construction work currently obstructing the bus loop in front of the IT Center is a water-profiling project that will repair a leaking problem in the portion of Rush Rhees that extends underground. According to Fernandez, all of the paving that was above the underground portion will be re-coated, as a final step to be used for the project. He anticipates that the library’s back doors will open in the middle of October and that the rest of the project will be completed by the end of the month. Buses will use their normal routines at the start of October, he added.

The convenience of having the IT Center entrance closed, Fernandez stressed the need for students to use the IT Center entrance.

“We’ve been very concerned about [the inconvenience], but we’re also very concerned that the building needed to be repaired,” Fernandez said. “We’re trying to expedite it as quickly as we can.”

Another major project milestone this summer was breaking ground on the Ronald Reetner Hall for Media Arts and Innovation, which will be a three-story, 18,900 square foot building housing an engineering fabrication lab, sound and video recording studios, a multipurpose learning studio, group study areas and exhibit space. UR has also created a new major in digital media arts, which will be housed in the building.

Other summer construction projects include a new parking lot to the north of Southside Living Center where there was previously a baseball field. The lot, which will be used by employees of the UR Medical Center, is scheduled to be used by mid-September or mid-October. The soonest full field of the tennis courts near Hill Stadium was expanded and is now regulation size, meeting NCAAs requirements. Furthermore, lights were added to the baseball field next to Fauver Stadium and astro-turf was added to expand its use, in addition to a new dugout and backstop. Energy-efficient lighting was also added to Fauver Stadium.

Fernandez said that despite what seems like a larger than normal amount of construction on campus, this year it is only “a little bit more than normal.”

“Generally we do a lot of work during the summers on the River Campus,” Fernandez said. “We try to minimize to the maximum extent construction work during the school year.”

Dining

In terms of dining, many of the changes over the summer months amount to a “little bit more than fine-tuning” rather than drastic overhauls.

After taking into account student feedback, campus-wide dining halls menus underwent a makeover, the primary result of which will be expanded vegan and vegetarian options — something that was heard “over and over again,” by students, according to Marketing Manager of UR Dining Kevin Aubrey. Danforth Dining Center will offer four vegan and vegetarian selections every day. A greater selection of vegan and vegetarian options, Aubrey said, will be offered at every meal, as well as more low sodium soups. All dining locations will also have a selection of homemade dressings.

“A standard part of what we do every summer is re-calibrating the menu,” Director of Dining Services Cam Schauf said. “We’re not trying to build healthy menus because those always sound boring — we’re trying to build wholesome menus so that students can make good decisions on a daily basis.”

In keeping with the push toward helping students make healthy food decisions, a new smartphone application was launched that will allow students to access menus and nutritional information for dining locations while on the go. The app, which allows students to search in many different ways, such as by calories, is available in the Android and iTunes marketplaces.

The only change made to meal plans is the addition of seven bo- nu meals on the Unlimited Plan. Students can use bonus meals for guests, special events such as the Dandelion Day dinner that occurred for the first time last year, and to purchase an eco-clamshell for to-go meals. Schauf said that any changes that might be made to meal plans for the 2013-14 school year will be discussed this fall.

Campus-wide, an entirely nut-free, a continuation of last year’s pilot nut-free initiative that was very successful, Aubrey said. In keeping with what Schauf said is a big need to accommodate those with allergies, Douglass Dining Center will have a gluten free center with gluten free breads and a separate toasting area.

“Food allergies and food intoler- ance are across the board on the rise,” Schauf said. “By far the big- gest issue is wheat.”

Starbucks has added seven dif- ferent varieties of hot breakfast sandwiches and wraps that Aubrey said he thinks are “going to be a huge thing” and have already been successful since being piloted this summer. The addition of the breakfast sandwiches, which will be served until 2 p.m., will also make it possible for bagels to be toasted, something that Schauf said was a vexing issue for students in the past. Starbucks will also offer Refreshers beverages, which are made with green coffee extract, and the mocha cookie crumble frappucino.

Improvements to other campus dining locations include new op- tions at the brick oven pizza station and the grill station in The Com- mence, an expansion of products at Hillside Market, including more special kosher, Halal, gluten free and organic items; a special sweepstakes promotion at Connections to help highlight the fact that it will be open during the construction that will block the IT Center entrance; and a new menu at The Melora Restaurant that will be focused around locally grown products. The old menu featuring tried and true favorites like the Mel Burger, will still be available.

“We’re going to be giving it an identity as a place where our chefs can play with local foods and change the menu on a daily basis,” Schauf said. “It will also keep the chefs fresh and make it feel more like a restaurant.”

Lastly, Melissa Catering has been entirely redesigned and will offer new services and a new menu. In this new website, meloricatering.catertrax.com, has been live, and will be available for students to place orders online in the next few weeks.

“Unlike the last two years where we did a lot of big things, our ap- proach this summer was doing a lot of fine-tuning,” Schauf said. “I think we’ve done something [such that] at least every student will notice one change or enhancement depending on how they use it.”

UR adds buses to fleet, students asked to carry UR IDs

BY LEAH BULETTI News Editor

Within the next two to three weeks, many UR buses and shuttles will be equipped with magnetic card readers that will help better inform the UR administration about potentially non-existent RidenNow bus and shuttle routes.

Ten new buses will be joining UR’s fleet this fall and will likely be in service by Sept. 1. Card readers are slated to be installed on these buses by the following week. The remaining card readers will likely be installed in December when nine more new buses join the fleet. All new buses will not have card readers installed.

Without students will now be asked to carry their IDs to swipe when boarding the bus, the card readers will not be used to prevent anyone not affiliated with the University or anyone who has forgotten their card from traveling on the buses.

“We are trying to work on developing the routes better and to help us determine who is riding where,” Howard Flint, general manager of First Transit, the company UR uses to contract buses, said.

For example, the machines could track information about the fact that a freshman boarder is certain bus from Rush Rhees Library, Flint said.

“We got the card readers so that we could get a better un- derstanding of how many people are using the buses and who they are,” Dean of the College Richard Feldman said. “They will help us plan schedules that most effectively meet the needs of the University community and en- able us to allocate the costs to the various divisions equitably.”

Another change to UR transpor- tation that is new this semester is the changes to the red line and the creation of a new orange line.

The red line has become a direct line from the River Campus to the Eastman School of Music and the new orange line housing route will “provide service to commuters and to those wanting transpor- tation for social purposes, but on reduced hours,” according to UR’s transportation website.

Students are also advised that buses may be running behind schedule due to delays resulting from the construction on Mt. Hope Avenue.

Furthermore, pickup on the River Campus will take place slightly east of the IT Center due to construction. For a full sched- ule, visit rochester.edu/parking/ options/bussesandshuttles.html.

Students can look forward to two big-name performances at UR this fall — alternative hip-hop duo Chiddy Bang on Saturday, Sept. 14 and comedian Craig Robinson on Sept. 1 at Yelowjacket Weekend.

Chiddy Bang, which hails from Philadelphia, consists of Chidera “Chiddy” Anamogho and Noah “Xaphoon Jones” Beresin, who met in 2008 during their freshman year at Drexel University in Philadelphia. Much of their music is based around fusing beats from artists including Ellie Goulding, Radiohead, Sufjan Stevens, Passion Pit, MGMT, and Wale. Chiddy Bang’s first free mixtape, called “The Swelly Express,” was debuted by the music blog Pretty Much Amazing in 2009 and gained a following in large part because of its online hit “Opposite of Adults,” which features a sample from “Kids” by MGMT. Chiddy Bang released its debut studio album “Breakfast” in February 2012, which features the single “Mind Your Manners.”

UR Concerts expressed excitement and optimism about Chiddy Bang as a choice.

“Even though neither of us personally know much about Chiddy Bang, we are very confident that they are a good choice, as it reflects the student body’s choice and is a slightly different genre than acts we have brought to campus in the past few years,” seniors Emily Dunn and Devin Embil, co-presidents of UR Concerts said in a joint statement.

Dunn and Embil said that they anticipate a positive reaction and that they hope “more people will show interest as they find out about the band.”

The concert will take place earlier than UR Concerts typically puts on its fall concert, primarily due to Chiddy Bang’s availability, according to Dunn and Embil.

“Having the concert earlier is also advantageous for us because students will have just begun classes and will not be swamped by homework and exams,” they said in the statement.

UR Concerts aims to put on four concerts per year, according to Dunn and Embil; one on Yellowjacket Weekend, which is typically the first weekend after fall semester classes start, a fall concert, a spring concert and the highly anticipated Bandelion Day concert in late spring.

UR Concerts has brought in names including Aniello Menas, Eric Hutchinsion, Ingrid Michaelson and Fabolous for previous fall shows.

UR Concerts has yet to announce a time frame for ticket sales, but ticket prices will be $15 for the floor and $12 for bleachers for UR students, $18 for the floor and $15 for bleachers for the UR community and $23 for the floor and $20 for bleachers for general admission.

Also coming to UR this fall is Chicago-born Craig Robinson, who is best known for his role as Darryl Philbin in NBC’s long-running comedy “The Office.” Robinson has also appeared in shows such as “ Arrested Development,” “Chilly,” “ Friends,” “Halfway Home” and “Reno 911!”

He has appeared in movies such as “ Knocked Up,” “Pineapple Express,” “Fanboys,” “Daddy’s Little Girl,” “ Zack and Miri Make a Porno,” “ Hot Tub Time Machine” and “ Miss March.” Robinson’s performances are sponsored by Campus Activities Board (CAB).

Wilson Day tradition still going strong in 24th year

BY MELISSA GOLDIN
Editor-in-Chief

Before freshmen can take their first college class, join (one too many) clubs, or experience the absolute chaos of the housing lottery, they will participate in what every class before them has experienced for the last 23 years — Wilson Day — “an annual day of service for all the incoming freshmen who go out into the community and give back to different organizations,” according to Wilson Day 2012 Coordinator and senior Liz Reidman. Wilson Day is sponsored by the Rochester Center for Community Leadership (RCCCL), which works closely with the Office of the Dean of Students to plan for the day.

“I dare to believe that it…has the transformative potential to shape a students’ undergraduate experience,” Director of RCCCL Glen Cerosaletti, who helps to plan Wilson Day, said. We like to think of Wilson Day as being one of the first stages or steps in a student’s undergraduate plan Wilson Day, said. We like to think of Wilson Day as being one of the first stages or steps in a student’s undergraduate plan for the day.

“With Wilson Day we give back to different organizations,” according to Wilson Day 2012 Coordinator and senior Liz Reidman. Wilson Day is sponsored by the Rochester Center for Community Leadership (RCCCL), which works closely with the Office of the Dean of Students to plan for the day.

“A lot of the work that freshmen will be involved with is non labor-oriented, including tasks such as garden and yard work and painting, but no matter what the work will include, Reidman explains. ‘So it is a day of service, but it hopefully will be more than just one day of service.’

The approximately 1,250 students in this year’s freshman class will be placed at 66 different agencies for the day, including Mt. Hope Cemetery, local schools, Wasteide Farmers’ Market and organizations in the 19th Ward community to name a few. Additionally, this year marks the launch of a new website for the opportunity to continue volunteering while at UR.

“Wilson Day is a tradition at UR and it’s been going on for years — it’s a really great way and you can meet a lot of really cool people,” Reidman said. Goldin is a member of the class of 2013.

From ghosts to graduation: Navigating the high seas of the University’s many enduring myths

BY JENNY HANSLER

Most universities have their stories, their legends, their myths. UR is no exception. As a new member of the Yellowjacket family, each freshman now has the opportunity not only to learn the strange secrets of UR, but also to separate truth from fiction. The Campus Times has sorted through the school’s most well-known and shocking myths, so read on, beware, be warned and be on the lookout.

Myth #1: It snows in Rochester from September until April.

MYTH: BUSTED

It is a common misconception that Rochester has two seasons: summer and winter, but Rochester does, in fact, experience all four seasons. Students witness the crisp air and the change of the leaves in the fall, the blossoming greenery in the spring and, for those who stay, plenty of sun in the summer.

There then is the big, bad winter with snow, ice, sleet and freezing cold. However, the unbreakable cold is not inevitable. Occasionally, the winter is on the mild side, so all hope is not lost.

Myth #2: If you walk under the clock tower in Dandelion Square, you will not graduate in four years.

MYTH: UNDETERMINED

This may be UR’s most widely known myth. It is said that as soon as one steps foot on the dandelion under the clock tower, their fate is sealed. They will not graduate on time.

While there are no records of those who dare to take this journey, some people do dare to defy the myth, perhaps either for their fate is sealed. They will not graduate on time.

When did the fires could be contained in the building in case of a chemical fire. Pods can be detached from the various places.

The pod in question would then be moved on.

Myth #4: The strange design of Hutchison Hall is a safety precaution.

Hutchison, nicknamed Hutch, is one of the most striking buildings on campus not for the beauty of its architecture but for its unusual form — brick pods jut out from the main structure in various places.

According to the myth, these pods can be detached from the building in case of a chemical fire.

The pod in question would then be moved on.

The campus times sat down with Patel and Czekai to discuss the coming school year and learn a little more about their lives outside of the SA.

Where are you from and what are your majors?

Roshal Patel: I am from Ni- skayuna, NY and I am a double major in health policy and biology. I have also been accepted into the Take Five program to study digital music.

Alina Czekai: Health policy major from Philadelphia.

Why did you decide to run for SA president and vice president?

R.P.: Because I enjoy being a resource for other students.

A.C.: We have both been involved in SA government for a number of years and have always shared similar views on student life at UR.

As we approached senior year and considered our involvement within the SA, we decided to dedicate our last year at school to improving student life in a new and exciting role. We look forward to advocating on behalf of our peers and working with the new leaders of SA government.

What else are you involved with on campus?

R.P.: I was on [UR Rasa] for the past three years, being captain for five of the six semesters I was on the team. While I am taking the year off to devote my efforts to the presidency, I do intend on continuing to dance for the team in my Take Five year. I am also a member of the Delta Upsilon fraternity, currently holding the position of chief justice. I have been doing my own research at the UR Medical Center in the department of neurobiology and anatomy for over a half a year. I have been researching a specific gene and its effect on hearing loss in mice.

A.C.: President of Kappa Delta Sorority, student supervisor at the Common Connection, TA for biology lab.

Get to Know Me: Roshal Patel and Alina Czekai

BY MELISSA GOLDIN

At the end of the 2011-12 school year, UR’s undergraduate student body elected seniors Roshal Patel and Alina Czekai to the posts of Student Association (SA) president and vice president, respectively. They are succeeding Key Scholar Bradley Halpern and senior Skayuna, N.Y. and I am a double major from Philadelphia.

I have also been accepted into the [UR Medical Center] in the department of neurobiology and anatomy for over a half a year. I have been researching a specific gene and its effect on hearing loss in mice.

Leaders: Patel and Czekai ready, excited for school year

What, if nothing else, do you hope to accomplish this year in the SA?

R.P.: I hope to make as many students as possible aware that the SA is here for them as a resource. While this seems to be a broad and general goal, it is one of the most important.

A.C.: We want the study body to know that they can come to the SA with questions and concerns and we are here as a resource. We serve you!

What are you most looking forward to this year outside of the SA?

A.C.: I am excited to enjoy senior year with my friends and begin the search of what I will be doing with the rest of my life.

Why do you love UR?

R.P.: The snow. I'm mostly kidding. While I do love snow, I love UR because of the people and the opportunities we are given.

A.C.: I love UR because everyone on campus is different in their interests and passions, yet everyone is supportive of each other. I love walking around campus and seeing friendly faces. I feel that I belong to a true community.

What is your most memorable moment from college thus far?

R.P.: Tough question. Probably Raas bonding. It is something the Raas team does at the beginning of each semester and it is usually incredibly fun. Some things we have done in the past are scavenger hunts and dance-offs.

A.C.: Roshal and I getting Coldstone last year talking about our tentative plans for the upcoming election and saying “Let’s do this.”

What is the best piece of advice you can give to the incoming freshmen?

R.P.: Have fun. Sometimes we get so caught up in everything that we are doing that we forget to have fun with it.

A.C.: Try new things and meet new people! Freshman year is all about branching out of your comfort zone.

Tell me something quirky about yourself.

R.P.: I often wake up a minute before my alarm goes off. It is pretty scary.

A.C.: Amelia Earhart never got lost.

What is your favorite lesser-known Rochester activity?

R.P.: I’m not sure if food counts as an activity (and if it doesn’t, it totally should), but — Dogtown. Their food is so good and vegetarian friendly!

A.C.: Strong Museum of Play. I grew up in Rochester and went all the time when I was little. It is still as fun as Disney World to me. The pretend Wegmans is unreal.

If you could change the outcome of one historical event what would it be and why?

R.P.: I would want Jonathan Larson to have lived to see his production of Rent.

A.C.: Amelia Earhart never got lost.

What is the best UR pun you’ve heard?

R.P.: UR Punny. Get it? It is like, you are funny. But it is UR Punny. And we are talking about puns.

A.C.: URoc. Goldin is a member of the class of 2013.
